

DC Influencer Index: October 2017

Uncertainty around the tax reform bill drives negative sentiment among Influencers.

Tax reform, Puerto Rico and the Las Vegas shooting were the top topics in October's Washington Influencer Index.

Washington Influencers mentioned tax reform 42 percent more times this month than they did last month as the debate on the impending bill increased online. Meanwhile, Democrats worked in unison on social media to spread awareness about the shortened Open Enrollment period using a hashtag to let constituents know the enrollment period began November 2.

DEMOCRATS USE #GETCOVERED TO DRAW ATTENTION TO OPEN ENROLLMENT, MAKES TOP 5 HASHTAGS

Medicaid was a topic of discussion in October due to changes in the upcoming enrollment period and its promotion to the public.

As a result, the Democratic bought ads for the program themselves and reminded their constituents about the enrollment period on social media. They used #OpenEnrollment to drive the conversation, and by the end of the month, their tweets made more than 101 million total impressions on Twitter.

The graph above highlights their coordinated effort to spread the word on October 25, a week before Open Enrollment began, and October 31, the day before it began. Despite being used primarily on those two days, #GetCovered was the fifth most mentioned hashtag in October.

The open enrollment period lasts Nov. 1–Dec. 15. Expect to see #GetCovered, #OpenEnrollment and #ACA climb to the top of your trending topics as Democrats including Nancy Pelosi, Joe Kennedy, and the House Democrats Twitter account push this message.

UNCERTAINTY AROUND THE TAX REFORM BILL DRIVES NEGATIVE SENTIMENT AMONG INFLUENCERS

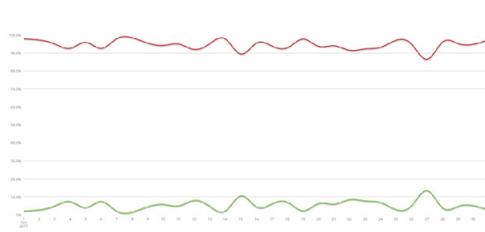

Fig. 2: October 2017 negative and positive tweet sentiment comparison on tax reform.

With little to no information available on the bill that would be released in November, October tweets mentioning the tax reform bill were 92 percent negative. A majority of the top retweeted tweets coming from members from both sides of the aisle, including Sens. Rand Paul and Brian Schatz.

After #TaxReform, #BillionairesFirst was the second most used hashtag Washington Influencers used when talking about tax reform. In addition to possibly benefitting the top 1 percent, the proposed GOP bill was initially under scrutiny for its potential to cripple middle- and lower-income families.

Now that that an initial tax reform bill has been revealed, we can expect to see more positive tweets about tax reform in November as House Republicans and Democrats debate the details of the bill.

Top topics within the tax reform conversation ranged from families, health care, the budget deficit, and the framework. They will likely continue to shape and form the conversation around the proposed tax reform.

LAS VEGAS: TOP RETWEETED TWEET; SHORTEST CONVERSATION HELD BY INFLUENCERS.

The above tweet by Rep. Mike Thompson (D-CA 5th District) was the most retweeted tweet by Washington Influencers. His post, which was in response to the shooting in Las Vegas that left more than 600 people injured, was retweeted 33 times by Washington Influencers and 1,619 times total for a total of 2.8 million total potential impressions made on Twitter.

#LasVegas was the third most used hashtag by Washington Influencers, but was also only mentioned in excess for two days before the conversation dropped from 450–500 posts per day, to 10–20 posts a day.

The other top retweeted tweets focused on the impending tax reform bill, the Trump administration's attempt to end the DREAM Act, and Bob Corker's tweet about Donald Trump, which generated 8.2 million total potential impressions on Twitter.

Other notable retweeted Washington Influencers included Rep. Salud Carbajal (D-CA 24th District), Rep. Al Green (D-TX 9th District), Rep. Doris Matsui (D-CA 6th District), and Rep. Pete Aguilar (D-CA).
